Hillsdale Rural Cemetery.

To a contemplative mind there is no place more interesting and instructive than a walk in a well ordered grave yard. It calls up reflections upon the scenes through which those sleeping before us must have passed in life. It induces us to take a retrospect of our past lives, in which so much of mental and physical suffering, had been mingled in our cup of happiness, that we are led to exclaim with the moralist: "The veil which conceals from our eyes the scenes of future events is a veil woven by the hand of mercy."

It causes us to look forward to that grave to which, through further mental and physical suffering, we are hastening, and in which those before us are so peacefully sleeping, and in serene resignation we are led to sing with the poet :

I would not live always, I ask not to stay,
Where storm after storm rises dark o'er the way ;
The few lurid mornings that dawn on us here,
Are enough for life's woes, full enough for its cheer.

I would not live always—no, welcome the tomb,
Since Jesus hath lain there, I dread not its gloom ;
There sweet be my rest till he bids me arise,
To hail him in triumph, descending the skies.

I would not live always away from my God,
Away from yon Heaven, the blissful abode ;
Where the rivers of pleasure flow o'er the bright plain,
And the noontide of glory eternally reigns.

Where the saints of all ages in harmony meet,
Their Saviour and brethren transported to greet,
While the anthems of rapture unceasingly roll,
And the smile of the Lord is the feast of the soul.

Up to 1865 the inhabitants of Hillsdale had no grave yards under legal statutory protection. Over forty places had been used for burying dead, most of which had become obliterated. Two burying grounds of half an acre each, were situated near Hillsdale village. One was filled to its utmost capacity, and the other nearly so. No titles had ever been obtained for them. Bodies were buried by mere sufferance. But little or no regard was paid to kindred ties, and strangers were buried beside strangers, and the bones of some were thrown up to make room for the bodies of others, and the land being used for pasturage, the grave stones were not unfrequently broken.

Under these circumstances, a place for burying dead under legal protection, was long felt to be a necessity, and a committee for that purpose had been appointed for years. But they had either neglected to act, or were not able to surmount the difficulties they had to encounter. The rolling nature of the land and the proximity of rock and water to the surface, made it difficult to find ground of sufficient capacity for town cemetery purposes, and those owning the most proper land near the village refused to give title to land intended for a grave yard.

Mercenary motives or private resentments made it difficult to get the people to harmonize in respect to grounds remote from the village. Under these circumstances a meeting was called, which assembled at the Methodist Episcopal Church, in Hillsdale village, on the 28th day of November 1865. At that meeting the HILLSDALE RURAL CEMETERY ASSOCIATION was organized, according to law, as will appear from the copy of the certificate here inserted :

And for their patience, perseverance and industry, good taste and splendid success, they are entitled to the gratitude of the present and future generations in Hillsdale.

THE GROUNDS.

The grounds are situated one half mile northeasterly from Hillsdale village. The road leading from that village to Hillsdale Centre passes along the northerly border of the Cemetery; and the Columbia Turnpike road, at forty rods distance, and in full sight, passes its southerly border. Every foot of the land is well adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, and being a gravelly loam, in which the gravel predominates, while it is sufficiently tenacious, is easily dug, and no land could be more happily selected for preserving the substances deposited in its soil, or for preserving monuments erected, from the action of the frost.

Carriage ways crossing each other at right angles, run through the centre north and south, east and west, with a carriage way all around the borders.

Walks sunk in the ground, four feet wide, pass north and south between all the ranges, and east and west between every other plot.

It is sub-divided into 444 plots, seventy-six of which have already been taken, and seventy-two are in the free ground, leaving 300 yet to be taken, which, with judicious management, will produce a revenue for the improvement and preservation of the ground, for centuries to come.

There have been about fifty ornamental shade trees set out, and now living, principally around the borders of the ground.

On the easterly side is a wall two feet high and sunk two feet in the ground. Upon it is a painted picket fence, with iron posts. On the northerly side is a painted picketed fence, with iron posts, set in marble. On the westerly side is a painted picket fence, with wooden posts, having iron dowels at their feet, set in marble, with iron bars, the feet of which are also set in marble.

The gates are of iron, with ornamental architectural surroundings.

Two thirds of the land is nearly level, or gently rolling, while one third is elevated, admirably adapting it for plots, or receiving vaults, as may be desired.

Already near five thousand dollars has been expended in monuments erected to the memory of the dead, or in iron or marble fences around the plots.

And in the purchasing of the land and in its fencing, grading and ornamenting, including hearse house and hearse, nearly four thousand dollars more has been expended.

The outstanding debt on the 3d of November, 1871, was $514, with nearly enough surplus money in the treasury for its extinguishment.

HARRY BRAZEE, born 1803, died 1868, and buried in Plot 18, of Range 7.

He was long a member of the Presbyterian Church and the purity of his life did honor to his religious profession.

JOHN COLLIN, of French parentage, was born in France, 1706, and emigrated to this country, 1730, in which year he married Hannah Merwin, of Milford, Conn., died 1746, and a monument is erected to his memory in Plot 6, of Range 4.

Having received a nautical education he was appointed to the command of the ship Swan, belonging to John Merwin, of Milford, Connecticut, whose daughter he married, and by whom he had three sons, John, David and James. He continued in command of the ship during sixteen years. But in the year 1746 he sailed in his ship from Milford Haven, for the West Indies, and was never heard of after. His family waited his return in painful suspense till time gave assurance that he never could return, and left them to realize the Poet's language :

“O were his tale of sorrow known,
 ’T were something to the broken heart ;
 The pangs of doubt would then be gone,
 And fancy’s endless dreams depart.

It may not be, there is no ray
 By which his fate we may explore ;
 We only know he sailed away,
 And ne’er was seen or heard of more.”

Hannah Merwin’s great-grandfather, (Miles Merwin, was born in Wales in 1623, and emigrated to this country in 1645, and purchased Merwin’s Point in Milford, Connecticut. He died in 1697, aged 74 years. His son John, born 1650, inherited the homestead, and upon his decease, John Merwin, 2d, born 1780, inherited the homestead. He was the father of Hannah, the wife and widow of John Collin, and he became the guardian of her children. That homestead still remains in the family, and as a place of resort, is one of the finest bathing places on the sound.

SUGGESTIONS.

In compiling the foregoing proceedings of the Trustees, it appears that though two committees had been appointed to draft By-Laws, no such By-Laws had been adopted or made a record of. Therefore, in arriving at their distinguished success the Trustees were governed by their public spirit, good sense, and good taste, rather than by any rules established for their instruction.

But this association has been established for the benefit of the future, as well as for the present generation. Future Trustees, however, may not be equally public spirited, and may not possess equal good sense and good taste.

Therefore, a judicious system of By-Laws should be adopted by the present Board of Trustees, who have shown themselves so worthy of public confidence.

I therefore submit the following SUGGESTIONS :

First—That persons should not be permitted to become members of the association for less than Fifty Dollars, in the purchase of any plot out of the Free Ground. The plots judiciously occupied, will contain eight bodies, and such as will not pay that sum for that privilege, will rarely erect stones to the memory of their dead, and thereby possibly occupy the most conspicuous ground with nameless dead. They would be likely to bury without discretion, thereby wasting ground that should be preserved for the use of future generations. They would not be willing to incur any expense in the future preservation, improvement or beautifying the ground, and they will feel no interest in the present and future welfare of the association.

Second—That the Park in the centre of the ground shall be maintained in all future time to be 65 feet square.

Third—That the free ground shall continue to be in the south-west corner, and be bounded on the north by the carriage-way which crosses the grounds from east to west, and shall be bounded on the east by the carriage-way crossing the grounds from north to south.

Fourth.—That a Superintendent should be appointed by the Trustees, to be paid as the revenues of the association will justify. His duty should be to have the care of the grounds and appurtenances, and to see that they are preserved and kept in order, and to dictate in the free ground, where bodies shall be buried, and that each body does not occupy a space exceeding three feet wide by eight feet long, measuring from the center of the plot. And as far as circumstances will justify, that kindred should be buried beside kindred. And to see, particularly, that in other than the free grounds bodies should not be buried in any plot to which an owner had not obtained a title, duly entered in the field-book of the association. And for the instruction of such Superintendent, a copy of the entries in the field-book should be placed in his hands.

These precautions are necessary to guard against the confusion occurring in unincorporated grounds.

They are also necessary to prevent two persons from obtaining possession of the same ground, and to prevent burials in grounds not paid for, to the disgust and wrong of those who have generously paid for the ground they occupy, and to prevent bad feeling and great injury to the Association generally.

Fifth.—Large ornamental or shade trees should be only set around the border of the grounds or around the Park, as nothing defaces grave stones or monuments like the drippings from large shade trees.

Smaller shrubs or flowers are more suitable for plots within the grounds.

Sixth.—As a revenue will be necessary at all times to pay Superintendants, and to occasionally paint the fences and Hearse House, and to repair them and other appurtenances of the grounds, and at the earliest opportunity to build a receiving vault, and a more permanent fence on the southerly portion of the grounds, I suggest the propriety of continuing the sum of Fifty Dollars per plot for all future time. And to those of limited means who wish to own, control and beautify a plot, that they may be permitted to purchase such plot in the Free Ground, at half price.

Such regulations will give a good, well regulated place of burial, free of expense to those extremely poor.

It will give, upon easy terms, a right to control the place of burial to those of limited means.

And at comparatively small expense it gives to the more affluent, places of burial as interesting as any others in the country, and insures a revenue which will be ample, and if limited to the surrounding community, will not be too soon absorbed, but will be preserved for the use of generations in the far off years.

The Association is authorized by law to receive gifts or bequests in trust, and to apply the income to the preservation or improvement of particular plots, or the cemetery, generally.

Some such bequests are already written, and for the instruction of such others as may desire to insert such bequests in their Wills, I here suggest a form.

FORM OF BEQUEST.

“I hereby give and bequeath to the HILLSDALE RURAL CEMETERY ASSOCIATION ..... dollars, to be held in trust, and to be immediately deposited in some Savings Bank until such time as a judicious investment can be made in public stocks or obligations secured by mortgages upon real estate, and the income arising therefrom to be applied in the following manner: One per cent is to be annually applied in the improvement of the cemetery plot of the testator and in preserving in the best condition the monuments erected therein, and to the painting the fence surrounding such plot, if any there be. And four per cent. of such income shall be applied in paying the Trustees for their expense and trouble in the care and disposition of said fund, and for their duties, generally, and the balance, if any there be, to be expended for the benefit of the grounds, generally.

CONCLUSION.

Should the same public spirit characterize the members of the Association in the future as in the past, the grounds will become the place of most interesting and profitable resort, not only to such as have friends sleeping there, but to all other persons,

A walk through them must ever suggest such reflections as are happily expressed by the poet in the following lines :

Here where precious dust is treasured,
    Watched by eyes from grief ne'er free,
Thou, by whom our tears are measured
    Turn those sorrowing eyes to thee.
Bid affliction wandering lonely,
    Through each walk and leafy grove,
Turn to him whose word can only
    Make the grave a place to love.

Here, may wayward footsteps bending,
    Footsteps all too careless grown,
Pondering life's uncertain ending,
    Learn to know and meet their own.
Hence may streams of influence flowing,
    Point out hearts the way to God,
And from honored ashes growing,
    Wise instructions mark the sod.
